GUIDELINES FOR ADVERTS IN CATTLE QUARTERLY

Adverts published in Cattle Quarterly have to be in compliance with the NOAH Code of Practice for the Promotion of Animal Medicines. The Code specifically applies to promotion of 'veterinary medicinal product' as defined in the Veterinary Medicines Regulations (VMR).

Adverts promoting a product that is not a veterinary medicinal product will, as far as is practical, be in compliance with the Code specifically Clauses 4.2, 4.3 & 6.2. For any specific queries contact BCVA Office.

The most up to date Code of Practice book is available at <http://www.noah.co.uk/medicine-topics/promotion-of-animal-medicines/>

All adverts are ran past the BCVA officers to make sure they are compliant with all current medicines legislation

If you would like to advertise please contact the BCVA Office on 01452 725735 or email office@cattlevet.co.uk

Cattle Practice

Cattle Practice is the primary BCVA journal, usually published digitally and in print once a year. It contains submissions relevant to the practice of cattle veterinary medicine in the UK and is circulated to all BCVA Members, plus additional subscribers. Cattle Practice also includes Congress Proceedings so every delegate at the annual BCVA Congress will receive copy. Members can access past editions and specific papers via our search engine.

Advertising in Cattle Practice targets key decision makers amongst our membership – from practice owners to leaders in industry and academia.
